The Election.

Before another issue of the Press and Ba ner shall have gone to press, the people of South Carolina will have exercised the greatest privilege of an American citizen-that of voting for the officers of their choice.

our opinion on some matters.

Excepting perhaps about ten per cent. of our people, they voted either at the first or second primary election. Because of participating in either election, at least nine-tenths of our people are pledged to support the regular nominees of the party.

Because of the conscientious scruples of our people in the effort to discharge their duty they will be true to past history in not supporting Independents or Bolters.

The Democratic party may rely on the support of the great mass of the people of Abbeville County.

have been made to our people-one by Dr. Sampson Pope, and one by Senator Irby. Dr. Pope, as an Indepedendent Reformer asks the people to vote for him for Governor against the regular nominee - John Gary Evans-on the ground that he is opposed to the dispensary law, while the regular nomince is in favor of it. The people of this County are almost a unit in favor of the law, and of course they will not desert the Dem ocratic party to vote for an Independent who seeks to destroy a law which they endorse. The other monstrous proposition is that of Senator Irby in his presumption to tell the people how they must vote. He goes further and adds insult to the honest and manly sentiments of this people, by his effort to carry the election for his Convention in withholding the necessary tickets to enable the people to give a fair and unbiased vote. The Press and Banner has no means of knowing how far the Reformers will consent to be treated as something less than free born citizens, and this newspaper is not informed if any citizen is going to play the part of a parrot, showing pride in doing his master's will, but we believe the people of this County will vote according to their own convictions of duty and according to their own sense of right and wrong.

The question of a Constitutional Convention no doubt has two sides to it, and many men may honestly and conscientiously be in favor of it. Of this class we have nothing to say, except in the highest respect.

What we are contending for is, an express ion of individual opinion. We don't want the intelligent citizens of Abbeville County to vote for a Convention simply because Irby says so, or because he refused to furnish the necessary tickets to secure a full vote.

The Press and Banner will vote for John Gary Evans and all the other nominees on the ticket. Allegiance to the Democratic party in our opinion demand this of us. Be-sides: if we were free to vote for Pope we would still vote for Evans. We would vote that way because we endorse the dispensary law. Evans supports it. Pope does not. We would vote for no man on the face of the earth who was opposed to the dispensary law -if there was a candidate in favor of the law.

Dr. Pope is no doubt as good a man as Mr. Evans, but we are voting according to our convictions as to a law, and in obedience to our sense of duty to the Democratic party. Having taken part in the primary, we feel bound to vote for Evans. Favoring the dispensary law, we are bound to vote against

On the Run.

It begins to look like Governor Tillman has the liquor men on the run. Although great quantities of liquor have been captured re cently yet the delicate woman and the inensed mob have not shown up since the rucus in Greenville. Charleston's liquor men and the baters of Tillman defied the law, and sensational dispatches were sent abroad as to the excitement in which respectable people took part, because of an attempted enforcement of the law. Florence raised her back, and, we belibve tion for defying the law.

Greenville, we presume, will be the last to proclaim her virtuous indignation and bitter hostility. But it seems that the liquor men and others who have been bent on the overthrow of the government simply because they didn't like the liquor law, have begun to learn a thing or Different towns have concluded to enforce the law, and less is now heard of delicate women, and all the bragadocio by bullies has disappeared from the newspapers. Tillman goes on capturing great quantities of contraband liquor, perhaps enough to pay the expenses of the constables. The violaters of the dispensary law having found that force will be met with force, they will likely cease to violate the law. The clandestine sale of whiskey not being consid ered reputable, it is quite likely that in a few months, or possibly weeks, the "blind tiger" will disappear from the land.

The Press and Banner is in receipt of a copy of the Atlanta Evening Journal, in which a marked article appears that utters grave charges against decency and respectability of this community, which is in direct conflict with the recent statement of the grand jury in reference to the dispensary

A sufficient answer to the falsity of his charge, is furnished in the words of the grand jury, which sat at the October term of our

"We as the Grand Jury of Abbeville county take pleasure in certifying to the wholesome effect of the Dispensary Law in this County. Under this system the temptation to drunk-enness has been greatly reduced with consequent, good results. We no longer see the brilliant lights of the open bars. The opportunity and the temptation to tippling has been removed. The habit of treating is now a thing of the past. It is with special pleasure that we note the fidelity with which the Police of the town enforce the law. Obeying the instructions of the town council they prevent the lillicit sale of liquor at Abbeville. The marked improvement of the peace and sobriety of the town furnish evident proof of the benefits of the new system of dealing with liquor. With the opportunity for observation which some of us have had, we are convinced that the Dispensary solves the question." "We as the Grand Jury of Abbeville county

We believe any assertion coming from whatever source, that there are notorious "blind tigers" in Abbeville, is utterly and

The surprising thing to us is, that a reputable newspaper like the Atlanta Evening Journal, would allow its columns to be used for vile and wicked purposes in slandering an unoffending community of respectable and law-abiding citizens.

No man has yet offered a sensible reason for calling a Convention. Do you know of any reason to vote for it, except in obedience to the man who assumes to order respectable.

If a minister cannot get the attention the piety of its members. Not their number, not their wealth, not their reading, it is his own fault; much of the interest of a service depends upon but their spirituality. Life alone can people to surrender their manhood.

Walter L. Main's Circus will be here to-day. Where the show has given recent exhibitions the newspapers have spoken very nicely of it. The street parade will, of course, be seen by everybody. Even those who are too plous to go within the peecincts of the grand pavilion will risk at least one eye on the splendid pageant as it passes up and down the principal thoroughfares. In response to the demand of religious people, objectionable features of shows, including the clowns' doubtful or vulgar jokes, have been eliminated from the programs of all the best shows.

Everybody loves to see a good show, and those of our people who can stand the expense, will no doubt enjoy the circus to-day Speaking for the Press and Banner, we like to see the circus, with its pomp, its glitter, its splendor, and its great variety.

We repeat that the Legislature some years ago undertook to prevent these exhibitions The Press and Banner has no advice to give by placing a high tax on their performanceto anybody, but we will take occasion to give and we hope that the Legislature in its wisdom may rescind their action, whereby the people have been deprived of a day's pleasure and sight-seeing.

The Southern people have but few days o general holiday, and it seems that one of ther most enjoyable days of the season has been denied us because of the high tax imposed by the Legislature.

Let us enjoy the jolly old clown and the entertaing show once a year. A laugh now and then is good. To forget for an hour the cares which weigh us down, will refresh and invigorate.

There are, however, good and plous people In this election two monstrous propositions who are still laboring under the delusion that all pleasures, and the circus in particular, are sinful. There are also good and conscientious men who may believe that it is their mission on earth to interdict the pleasures and enjoyments of the young. Wherever life and animation, youth and nnocent mirth, are found, it is their christian duty to cast a shadow over happy hearts and to make gloomy the delightful scenes.

At best, life has enough of its cares and sor rows; then let the children be happy for a day; let the creditor, for the hour cease to pur. in Equatorial Africa, and Moffatt and sue his debtor, and let the debtor for the short Colliard in Lower Africa, and Ellis sue his debtor, and let the debtor for the short time bid adieu to dull care.

Contribute to the pleasure of your children, and, if able to do so, give them all tickets to the show. Let them be happy while they may. The anxieties and burdens of life will be on them after awhile, when a hundred dollars would scarcely furnish as much pleasure ae they may now get for fitty cents.

Death of T. C. Gower.

Thos. C. Gower, for many years a prominent and useful citizen of the city of Greenville, was drowned one day last week in the French Broad river. He went in bathing, and it is supposed that he was taken with apoplexy. He was 73 years of age, and had accumulated a large estate. About twenty years ago he married Miss Saille Martin, of this village.

Not So Bad, Alter All-respie May Yet Live and Prosper.

Despite the fact that the price of cotton is lower than it has been for fifty years, another fact remains, and that fact is, that our people are in better shape to meet the situation than they have been at any time since the warthey been at any time since the warthey little. Our pastures have been remarkably good, and our corn.crop is the most abundant that we have had since the war. With fat cattle, a reasonable supply of pork and well-filled cribs, our farmers are in no danger of suffering serious loss on account of the low price of cotton.

They can have their butter and milk, and their hog and hominy can be raised on the place. Living at home, they can make the cotton crop a money crop, and can still do fairly well.

Citizens who are in debt will likely feel the weight of their burden, and trades people who are dependent on the circulation of money, may realize a bardship or curtailment of their profits because of a reduction of the circulating medium in their community, but those farmers who apply practical methods in reducing the outlary, will still live and prosper. The fact is, that the production of our crops must be reduced to a plain business transaction in which common sense must enter.

In the first place, the merchants will of necessity cut down their advances to a fraction of the impoundance to the impoundance.

In the first place, the merchants will of necessity cut down their advances to a fraction of the amount they have heretofore advanced to the impecunious or improvident planter.

In the next place, the planter must conform his methods to the changed condition. He must recognize the necessity not only for diversifying his crops, but for reducing the cash outlay in making cotton.

More attention will, of necessity, be given to the sowing of small grain and the planting of corn. The importance of pastures and threat walue of milk cows, porkers and colts, will be impressed upon all who aspire to succeed. In the changed condition some will no doubt see great cause for discouragement, and find abundant reason to fail out with this old country which has in the past produced so much wealth, and been the home of so many good men. But those who have a heart to brave the situation and adapt themselves to the circumstances, will still thrive and prosper.

It may be that the people will allow Irby to dictate to them what they must do about ordering a Convention, but we are inclined to think they will be slow to obey anybody's orders, as long as the expense is to be paid out of five cents cotton.

Irby may order, and the nincompoops may vote, but the farmers will pay the expense of the Convention.

THE RECENT MEETING

Of the Associate Reformed Synod at

there was not enough difference to cause divisions or separations.

He was delighted with his trip, and while in Troy was the guest of his friend, Mr. Geo. C. Bradley, of whom he speaks in terms of the kindest consideration. Mr. Bradley lives in an excellent house, and none are better prepared to give a friend a hospitable reception than he is. With the Judge Mr. Bradley entertained many of the distinguished members and delegates to Synod, and one occasion a had re-union of his classmates—eiven in all, nine of whom were preachers. The others were elders. Mr. Bradley has a big heart, and he knows how to make his friends have an enjoyable time.

The Judge left last Sunday for Philadelphia whither he goes to report to the body from which he went as a delegate to the Associate Reformed Synod.

The Anti-War Proposal.

JOSIAH W. LEEDS. The editorial note in the Christian Standard of Ninth month, 6th, second page, upon the lately inaugurated war between China and Japan about Corea is timely; the reflection that "it is time that these barbarities should cease," is true, and has been true since the overturning of primitive Christian faith and practice upon this matter by the Emperor Constantine in the fourth century, while the very responsible commission laid upon Dr. Stokes that he "communicate with the Emperor of China and Japan, and in the name of Jesus Christ and our common humanity, bid them be at peace," bears an aspect of encouragement. For, it will be remembered that it was one of the last acts of our lately-adjourned National Legislature, in an interval of its wrestling with the tariff bill ques tion, to reject the proposal of an arbi-tration treaty with Great Britian, for the pitiful reason that our political relations with Nicaragua might become unsettled, our status under the Clayton-Bulwer treaty be disturbed by a treaty of arbitration, and hence some possi-ble future decision or award in that connection prove not altogether acceptable to our people.
We need also to bear in 'mind that the military spirit is being very prac-tically stimulated amongst us through the plan of detailing officers learned Yours for furniture in the art of war to instruct our young men in the colleges and our lads in the public schools, how to go through the military drill; while the same leaven, operating in the churches, puts the weapons of carnal warfare in the hands f youthful recruits for the army of the Prince of Peace.

We may point the pagans to what Hudson Taylor and all his associates of the China Inland Mission testify and practice against the barbarity and non-Christian character of war, and so of Livingstone and Bishop Taylor and Coan in the South Seas and Sandwic hIslands. We may also tell them

THE ANNUAL MEETING of the Board of that Charles Spurgeon, first in name among the Baptists, disavowed altogether that "other Christianity" for the er that "other Christianity" for the heathen which came "with a Bible in its knapsack and a rifle in its hand;" that Dr. Cuyler, eminent among the Presbyterians, with no love for that strange fire of the Boys! Brigade in the churches, exclaims, "It is pitiable the churches, exclaims, butchery the strange of the churches in the churches when the strange of the stra to see the carnal weapons of butchery in the hands of Christian youth!"
while the saintly Wesley, founder of Methodism, made free to put forth the searching inquiry "Shall Christians assist the Prince of Hell who was a murderer from the beginning, by telling the world the benefit of war?"

There are a few other considerations intimately related to this subject, which were set forth in a tract entitled, "Ought Christians to engage in War?" issued by me last year, three para-graphs from which I append. As a member of the appointed committee for bringing before the churches the appeal to be laid before the world's governments on the subject of war, county of abbeville. and commending the amicable determination of all future international differences, I should rejoice to have laid before the rulers of the nations world," has enjoined his servants not to fight, but to overcome the world and all their enemies through patience, long-suffering, prayer and trust in Him. The extract referred to is as follows: "Professing Christendom having for long forsaken the simplicity of primitive faith and practice in this regard [by having resort to war], we need to turn now and learn anew a lesson from turn now and learn anew a lesson from the freshly impressed inhabitants of the lese afar off. When such a thing occurs as that of the Japanese envoys to England, charged with an examination into the merits and practical workings of Christianity with a view to its possible general adoption in the land of the Mikado, making report that what they had beheld in the way of preparations by the English to fight preparations by the English to fight their fellow-men were so opposed to Lots Nos. 10, 11, 12, 18, 14, and 15 in Block "M," the tenets of peace which they, the cach having a frontage of 30 feet on Main Christian English, professed, as to disincline them to suggest any change in Pine Street. the national religion of Japan, one may TERMS OF SALE.—One-half cash, balance you, as it is written. "Said that self-denying missionary, William Ellis, referring to the Polynesian converts, 'When Christianity was adopted by the people, human sac-rifices, infant murder and war entirely ceased.' When that fierce marauder and murderer, Afrikanes, became a Christian, he and his people put to-tally away their clubs and knives, their bows and arrows and spears. What an amazing transformation was that of the cannibal Fijians, so also that of the Samoan islanders! Coneerning the latter people, a most interesting statement (which also ought to be far more widely known than is the case) was made two years ago at a case) was made two years ago at a Conference held at Redland Park, Bristol, England.

"S. J. Whitmee, a missionary, stated that when he went to Samoa in 1863, he found the native Christians in those islands so fully convinced that war was utterly inconsistent with a profession of faith in Jesus Christ, that no person who took any part in war, either in promoting it as a statesman, or in en-Mr. Bernau represented the Abbeville church, and Judge Cothran went from this place as a delegate from the Presbyterian Alliance of the World. His mission had for its object the unification of the churches holding the Presbyterian faith.

The Judge was very much impressed by the members of the Associate Reformed Synod, and for the purity of their character and the sincerity of their purpose he has great respect. He thinks they are men of education, ability and fine personal appearance. The Judge in his address before the Synod urged the healing of the differences which now separate the churches that are now practically one and the same. He thought there was not enough difference-to cause divisions or separations.

He was a soldeir, could be a member of a Christian church. From the first acceptance of Christianity in the islands, this became the rule. It was adopted, not in consequence of the earliest English missionaries upon the subject, but a conclusion which forced itself upon the minds of the people themselves as soon as they understood the teaching and Spirit of Christ. He believed he was right in saying, the people were in advance of some of their missionary that was right in saying, the people were in advance of some of their missionary that he rule.
